Johns Hopkins Orthopaedic Surgery
Welcomes Greg M. Osgood, M.D. as our Newest Faculty Member

Johns Hopkins Orthopaedic Surgery is proud to announce the addition of Greg Osgood, M.D. as our first full-time Orthopaedic Trauma Faculty member.

Dr. Osgood's undergraduate degree is from Harvard University. He completed medical school at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. Dr. Osgood began his orthopaedic residency training with the United States Air Force and completed this training at New York Orthopaedic Hospital at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center. In 2005, he completed an Orthopaedic Trauma Fellowship at Harborview Medical Center in Seattle. Dr. Osgood joins us from the R. Adams Cowley Shock Trauma Center, where he worked since 2005.

Dr. Osgood is a former Major in the United States Air Force. He completed several combat deployments, providing orthopaedic trauma care to our military.

Dr. Osgood is actively involved in numerous professional organizations, including being the Associate Editor of the Journal of Orthopaedic Trauma, a member of the AO North America Teaching Faculty, a member of the Education Committee of the Osteosynthesis and Trauma Care Foundation, Orthopaedic Trauma Association Military Committee, and the Director of the Humanitarian Program of the Osteosynthesis and Trauma Care Foundation.

Dr. Osgood's interests in orthopaedic trauma care include fracture non-unions, pelvis and acetabular injuries, routine fractures and surgical infections.

Dr. Osgood sees trauma and fracture patients at the Johns Hopkins Outpatient Center. Please contact his office for an appointment.
